Footnotes

Although the headline ranking figures show changes in the data year to year, the pattern of clustering among the schools is equally significant. A total of 270 points separate Kellogg/Hong Kong UST Business School, at the top, from the school at number 100. The first nine business schools, from Kellogg/HKUST Business School to Duke University: Fuqua, form the top group of schools.

Key to the table (weighting in brackets)

Salary today (US$) (20) The average alumni salary three years after graduation. This figure includes alumni salary data for the current year and the one or two preceding years, where available. Salary percentage increase (20) The percentage increase in average alumni salary from before the EMBA to today as a percentage of the pre-EMBA salary. This figure includes data for the current year and the one or two preceding years, where available. Career progress (5) This is calculated according to changes in the level of seniority and the size of the companies where alumni work now versus before their EMBA. Data for the current year and the one or two preceding years are included where available. Work experience (5) This measures the previous experience of EMBA participants by examining seniority of positions held, number of years in each position, size of company and any international work experience prior to starting the EMBA. Aims achieved (5) The extent to which alumni fulfilled their most important goals or reasons for doing an EMBA. Women faculty (3) The percentage of female faculty. Women students (3) The percentage of female students. Women board (1) The percentage of female members of the advisory board. International faculty (5) The percentage of faculty whose citizenship differs from their country of employment. International students (5) This combines two pieces of data. The first is the percentage of participants who are resident in the country of the business school but whose citizenship is different from that country. The second is the percentage of participants who are resident outside the country in which the business school is situated. International board (2) The percentage of the board whose citizenship differs from the country in which the business school is based. International course experience (5) The percentage of classroom teaching hours that are carried out outside the country in which the business school is situated. Languages (1) Number of languages students are required to speak on graduation. Faculty with doctorates (5) The percentage of faculty with a doctoral degree. FT doctoral rank (5) This is calculated according to the number of doctoral graduates from each business school during the past three years. Additional points are given if these doctoral graduates took up faculty positions at one of the top 50 full-time MBA schools of 2010. FT research rank (10) This is calculated according to the number of faculty publications in 45 international academic and practitioner journals. Points are accrued by the business school where the author is currently employed. The total is weighted for faculty size.

Although the headline ranking figures show changes in the data year to year, the pattern of clustering among the schools is equally significant. A total of 270 points separate Kellogg/Hong Kong UST Business School, at the top, from the school at number 100. The first nine business schools, from Kellogg/WHU-Otto Beisheim School to Duke University Fuqua, form the top group of schools.

The second group is headed by the Chinese University of Hong Kong, which would need to increase its score by nine points to move up a group. Top of the third group is Rice University: Jones, six points behind Boston University School of Management. A total of 45 points separate the top and bottom schools in this third group. The fourth group is more spread out, separated by 70 points.
